

20th
NATIONAL PRINT AWARDS

Printers of Australia take a Bow!

Not only are Australian printers of international standard, according to the panel of judges at the 20th National Print Awards, there is a lot of international print that is just not up to our standard.

“It is most heartening to report that craft lives on, and that the improvements seen (in the entries for this year) are not just a reflection of more intelligent electronics or more sophisticated machinery and consumables,” commented Rod Urquhart, Chairman of Judges for the 20th National Print Awards.

“Granted separations and special effects now conform to a benchmark that would have been though unachievable a few years ago. However, to get a print that has just the right balance of ink, that is even and print defect free, that is sharp and in tight register, and to produce all of these characteristics in the form that exactly meets the customer’s requirements takes skill.”

And the panel of judges of the National Print Awards saw evidence of lots of it. Especially in work submitted by IPMG printing companies who together took home a grand total of fifteen medals.

Hannanprint NSW in particular were recognised for their achievements in printing excellence, winning five awards - two gold, one silver and two bronze medals.

Hannanprint NSW won a gold medal in the ‘Web Offset on Coated Stock - Press

Finished’ category for the Myer catalogue produced for Coles Myer. The second gold medal was won in the ‘Web Offset on Coated Stock - Finished Off-line’ category for the Financial Review Magazine printed for John Fairfax Publications.

A silver medal was awarded to Hannanprint NSW again in the ‘Web Offset on Coated Stock - Press Finished’ category for the Coles Myer Summer Living catalogue. One bronze medal was presented to Hannanprint NSW for the Coles Myer Grace Bros Stocktake catalogue for the ‘Web Offset on Coated Stock Press Finished’ category whilst the second bronze medal was won in the ‘Web Offset

Hannanprint NSW was not alone on the list of IPMG medal winners, also sharing the spotlight with fellow group member companies Bolton Inprint (1 Bronze medal), Inprint (1 Gold, 2 Silver and 1 Bronze medal), Hannanprint Victoria (1 Silver and 1 Bronze medal) and Offset Alpine Printing (1 Gold, 2 Silver medals).

Our outstanding performance at The National Print Awards each year is a tribute to the quality printed work that is continuously produced by IPMG printing companies. Congratulations to our medal winners and a special thank you to all of our employees who invested time and effort into these pro-jects for without you such great successes in printing excellence would not be achievable.
